resources, from fertile black earth to copper, coal, iron, lead, tungsten, and diamonds. It must be borne in mind that during the period under review this nation was working on a small scale, and the national economy was not a large one, the ruling group in the United States handled the world problem with the greatest caution, and the situation in the country.

It is not so that the national power of the United States is not a serious economic burden in view of the fact that its military consumption is less than 20 per cent of its gross national product. If we consider the national consumption of over a five-year period, then it becomes clear that the United States is a very large country which is preparing for a large war. The United States is a very large country which is preparing for a large war.
